Inclusive Governance

All people – including the poor, women, ethnic and religious minorities, indigenous peoples and other disadvantaged groups – have the right to participate meaningfully in governance processes and influence decisions that affect them.

Governance institutions and policies are accessible, accountable and responsive to disadvantaged groups, protecting their interests and providing diverse populations with equal opportunities for public services such as justice, health and education.

Budget/Funding

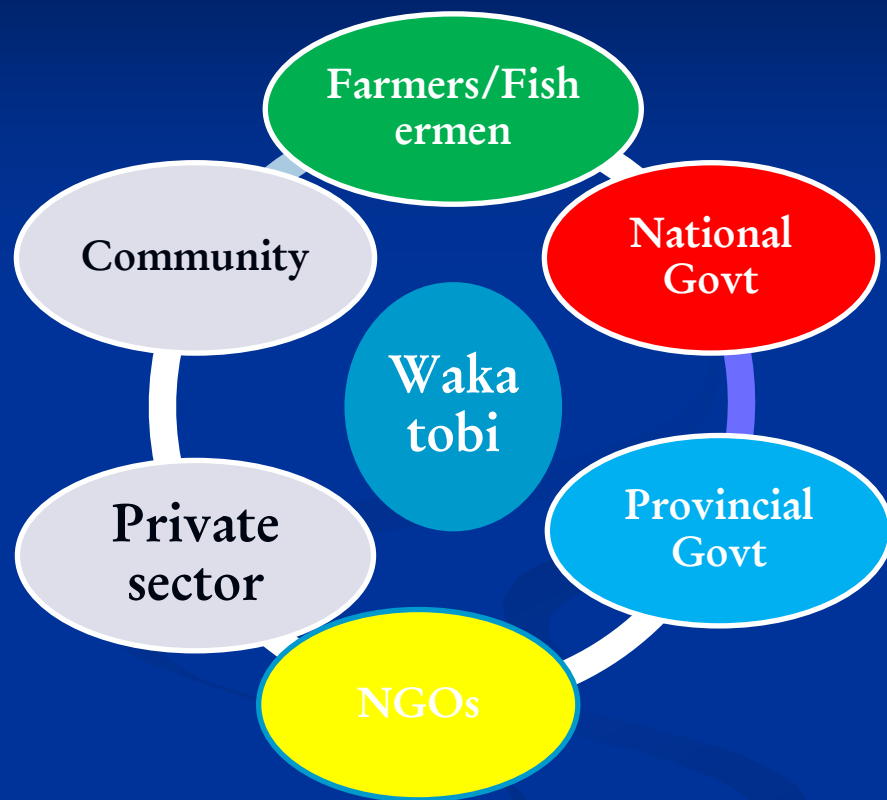

1. Central Government
2. Provincial Government
3. District Government: Regular programs and those under “Bersinar” programs
4. Domestic and International Organizations
5. Private Sector (including CSR)
